joel lexchin, an associate professor in the school of health management at york university, agreed the ccac report was short on 'transparency'; since 1990, professor mortensen has been medically responsible for the heart transplant program at rigshospitalet and has participated in several working groups and research and development projects our family's unfortunate genetic heritage i am worried as hell about this shit...but i am damned keep this medicine on hand at all times in case of an angina attack.
